STARTING WITH EKONKAR SINGH, NEO KHALSA HAS BECOME A DELIBERATE MANIFESTATION, QUIETLY ADDRESSING THE DEFICIENCIES WITHIN THE PANTH

	2025	2027	2028	2030
PROJECTS	NEO KHALSA KOANS	NEO SAROOP & WORKSHOP	SIKH ANIME & VC FUND LAUNCH

NEO KHALSA BEGAN AS A DIGITAL FORUM OF DISCOURSE CENTERED AROUND THE E-SQUARED SHOW, AND HAS QUIETLY EVOLVED INTO THE PRIMARY CHANNEL FOR DISSEMINATING IDEAS AND VOICING WHAT THE REST OF THE PANTH WILL NOT. IN THIS SPIRIT, THE IDEOLOGICAL CURRENT OF NEO KHALSA IS NOW TAKING SHAPE IN TANGIBLE INITIATIVES INTENDED TO PROPEL THE KHALSA INTO THE SECOND HALF OF THE 21ST CENTURY.

ACHERON IS NEO KHALSA'S SHADOWED CROSSING A QUIET PASSAGE FROM WORDS TO WILL.

THE NEO KHALSA OPERATES AS A STRATEGIC, RESULTS-DRIVEN HUB,
CENTERED ON GETTING THINGS DONE.

The Panth's core challenge is securing self-sustaining funding for work that creates real impact. Neo Khalsa intends to navigate this quietly starting with smaller, high-leverage efforts that fuel larger ones, climbing each rung with intention until the entire structure shifts upward.

Neo Khalsa lives in the legacy of the past, yet the name itself has entered the modern lexicon reflecting a paradox where past, present, and future coexist and move together.

The body makes it clear that the natural order, as opposed to whatever is civilized or built up, is superior.

OPERATION ACHERON SHADOW PASSAGE

Operation Acheron embodies the quiet, disciplined current of Neo Khalsa. It is the pathway where ideas are forged into intent, and intent into action. Just as Acheron flows unseen beneath the surface, this operation navigates the depths of discourse and strategy, moving beyond mere talk to decisive steps. It reflects the duality of Neo Khalsa itself: rooted in the wisdom of the past, yet shaping a future that only those willing to cross its shadowed currents can reach.

START UP

MANIFESTO

Neo Khalsa moves where others hesitate: rooted in legacy, shaping the future. Words become will, small acts spark greater change, and each step climbs the ladder toward a self-sustaining, disciplined, and unstoppable Khalsa.

DISCIPLINE

The goal is to show that Sikh philosophy and the universal ideas of mankind are one and the same.

NEO KHALSA KOANS
2026

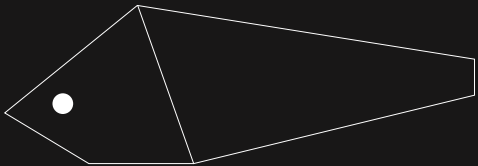

The Koans began quietly behind the scenes and were successfully crowdfunded, with their full release scheduled for 2026 poised to ignite minds and bridge timeless wisdom with modern insight.

ABOUT THE BOOK

Ekankar, a graduate in Art History, draws on archival and open-access images from across time periods and cultures. Through these visuals, he explores the expressive power of form, color, and composition, creating a rich dialogue between past and present, and making art an active medium to convey deeper truths.

On the philosophical side, Ekankar, trained in Philosophy, brings analytical rigor and interpretive depth to his work. He translates the profound principles of Sikhi into concepts that resonate widely, connecting intellectual insight with lived experience. By merging philosophy with art, he creates a unique avenue to engage both mind and senses, presenting timeless wisdom in a way that has never been done before.

REVITALIZING THE TRADITION OF HANDWRITTEN SAROOPS

NEO KHALSA

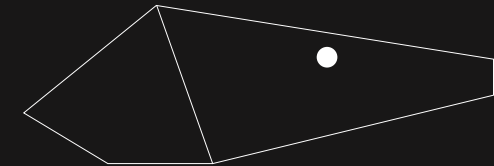

The Saroop revitalizes a longstanding Panth tradition, using meticulous aesthetics to elevate it into a work that is both visually stunning and deeply revered as a spiritual Granth, bridging art and devotion in a single, harmonious creation.

ABOUT THE SAROOP

The Saroop will be crafted on Japanese washi paper, celebrated for its thousand-year durability. Its pages will be dyed deep indigo and inscribed in gold ink, using negative space to maximum effect to create an aesthetic Granth that stands alongside the finest work of Likhari artisans over the past 200 years.

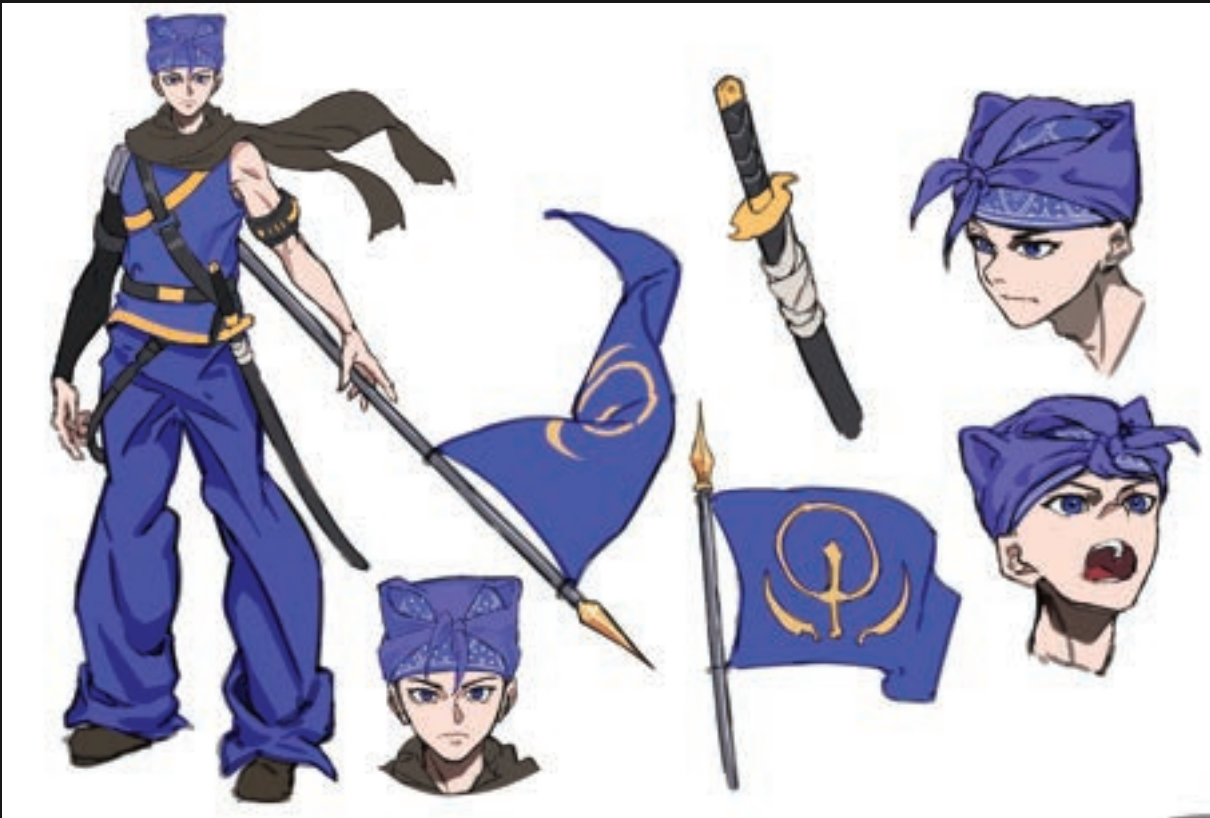

The extensive research preserved by the Khalsa forms the foundation of this monumental project. A Taksali Singh from Punjab will serve as the Likhari, painstakingly inscribing every letter to bring this vision to fruition with devotion and precision.

THE SAROOP WILL USE
DURABLE JAPANESE WASHI
PAPER, DYED INDIGO PAGES, AND GOLD INK.

BRING SIKH STORIES TO A WORLDWIDE AUDIENCE

NEO KHALSA

Using a sci-fi backdrop infused with fantasy, the anime sidesteps panthic divisions to cast the widest possible net, reaching audiences globally while conveying the depth and values of the Khalsa in an engaging, imaginative way.

GENERAL INFORMATION

ABOUT THE ANIME

This anime is not merely for telling historical stories to Sikhs; it is designed to introduce the Khalsa to audiences unfamiliar with Sikhi. By presenting these expansive narratives to the wider world, it challenges perceptions and earns acceptance from both non-Sikhs and the Sikh community alike. Non-conformity is a strength, and the story is crafted to withstand scrutiny, standing as a bold, thoughtful, and enduring testament to the Khalsa's legacy.

The story follows Sikhs who uncover an ancient technology powered by their spiritual energy. As the world covets this power, it sparks wars and destruction, forcing a resistance of Sikhs to rise. Their struggle mirrors the trials and tribulations of the past, blending history with a high stakes, spiritual fueled conflict that tests courage, faith, and unity.

INFORMATION

The Akhara will be a Sikh space that reimagines the traditional in-person gathering, creating a place for Sikhs to meet, discuss, and create for the Panth. The space will include a lecture hall, a library, common areas, small galleries, a bookshop, and a studio for developing projects. It will function as an incubator for new voices within the Panth.

CREATE PHYSICAL SIKH SPACES FOR DISCOURSE

NEO KHALSA

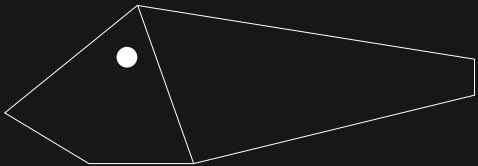

This space will operate as an incubator for thought and action, where discourse and energy can move from online spaces into in-person engagement.

ABOUT THE SPACE

The Gurdwara, as a living and functional space for the intellectual and spiritual development of youth, and as a bridge for meaningful engagement through rigorous debate and critical thought, is currently underdeveloped in practice. Today's youth and community members require a safe and constructive environment for both intellectual and physical growth—an integrated space that nurtures the mind and body through recreation, creation, and reflection.

The Akhara seeks to establish such a space: one that is free from rigid committee-driven ideology or narrow factional thinking. It is a platform where ideas can be openly tested and refined, and where the strongest, most thoughtful perspective can prevail on its own merit.

THE AKHARA: MAY THE BEST IDEA PREVAIL, AND MAY THE PANTH BLOSSOM FORTH.

NEO KHALSA UNIVERSITY

For decades, Sikh educational institutions have remained largely insular, separated from the broader intellectual traditions that have shaped civilizations across the world. The Neo Khalsa University seeks to change this by creating a center of learning that brings together the wisdom of both East and West, placing the teachings of the Sikh Gurus and Sikh intellectual tradition in conversation with the great philosophers, scientists, and thinkers of human history.

What kind of mind emerges when Plato, Aristotle, and Kant are studied alongside Gurbani and the Sikh Gurus? Neo Khalsa University aims to cultivate precisely these individuals—leaders, scholars, and visionaries capable of meaningful change. With a campus designed to rival the world’s great universities, it will serve not only as a hub of Sikh learning, but as a destination for students and seekers from every background.

We must strive to carry the vision of the Anandpur Darbar forward into the future, ensuring its principles continue to resonate through time and guide generations to come.

This university does not seek to educate only its own community, but to engage with the wider world as a center of learning. In doing so, it reflects the spirit of the Anandpur Darbar, established by the father of the Khalsa, as a place of openness, dialogue, and intellectual exchange.

DISCIPLINE

Interdisciplinary studying is the future of learning for the continued abstraction of the future.

Volume II

POST-TECHNOSPHERIC SOCIETY

Crossover between different disciplines of study provides two key outcomes: it reflects the increasing abstraction as humanity moves deeper into the future, and it unlocks a greater understanding that is otherwise constrained by siloed ideologies that fail to recognize the underlying unity connecting them.

For example, philosophy should connect to kinesiology, and kinesiology should connect to urban design—revealing not isolated disciplines, but different expressions of the same underlying system. Even when these links are not immediately apparent, they are always present: the body is studied through kinesiology at the micro level, while urban design considers how that body moves, exists, and is shaped within public space at the macro level. These connections exist everywhere, waiting to be recognized. Once seen, knowledge is no longer fragmented, but becomes a unified web where each discipline reflects and informs the others.

RESOURCES

Financial possibilities and costs.

- 01 There are many factors involved in identifying and developing the right adaptive reuse project for constructing a university. Early-stage preconstruction services—working closely with contractors, architects, and engineers—are essential to assess feasibility, align design goals, and ensure constructability.
- 02 Hidden costs and unexpected issues will arise in most projects, and planning for them early on will make the construction process much smoother.
- 03 Finding the faculty and minds that align with and support the vision is more important than the physical building itself.

NEO

DESIGN

GURDWARAS OF THE MILLENNIA

The magnum opus of the Neo Khalsa in the West is the creation of a monumental Gurdwara that surpasses the architecture and design of any spiritual building in the Western world. This Gurdwara will function as a community center, but offer far more than conventional spiritual spaces. Operating 24/7, it will provide services and functions not found in typical public institutions.

As a project of monumental scale, its architecture will stand as a beacon and testament to the vision of the Neo Khalsa. This is a long-term undertaking, one that smaller projects and initiatives will gradually build toward. Ultimately, it will gather these efforts into a single home for the Neo Khalsa movement, ushering Sikh spaces into a new future of aesthetic, cultural, and spiritual achievement.

Once opened to the public, this space will usher in a new era of Sikh excellence, restoring what has been forgotten by others in the creation of spiritual places.

IMLADRIS THE KHALSA CITY

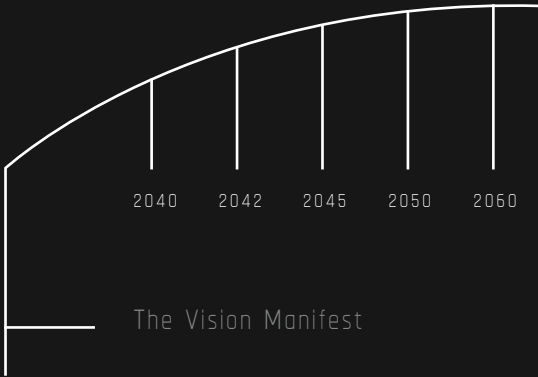

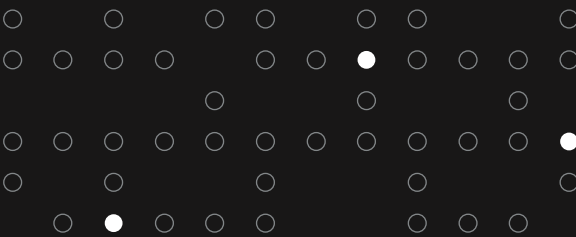

THE END POINT

The city state stands as a pinnacle of mankind's history the ability to create preserve and transform. It endures the test of time not through its bricks and timber but through its ideals. The Guru and the Khalsa Panth are burdened with continuing the path laid by the Gurus and within our history the city represents the center of creating heaven on earth for humanity.

This is the final stage of the vision the top of the ladder in the physical realm of earth. Intended for all the city of the Khalsa becomes the point of the blueprint where all work ultimately converges because only through a true civic space can Eden be realized.

URBAN

PERSPECTIVE

The Greek city state system, with its acropolis, remains a model thousands of years later for the Western world and became the nucleus from which other major city states and cultural centers emerged, including Rome, Florence, Paris, London, and in the modern era New York City. This is how a lasting mark is left on the world.

INFLUENCE

Even without the Western model, the Gurus set us upon this mission, shaped by a collective training that unfolded from Kartarpur to Anandpur.

ASSET REPLENISHMENT

CLASSIFICATION OF ASSET

Assets are categorized into human and material to streamline strategy and resource management. Human assets encompass skills, knowledge, and expertise that drive action and decision-making. Material assets include physical resources, tools, and technologies essential to support operations. Together, they form the foundation for effective planning, execution, and sustained impact.

HUMAN ASSETS PROJECT

Human assets can serve in two ways: frontline individuals who operate in the public eye, and those who work behind the scenes, supplying and supporting efforts privately.

Public assets engage openly, promoting Sikh, debating, and creating. They advance Sikh thought through writings on the Granth, philosophy, and other public initiatives, bringing sikhi to the masses.

Private assets operate behind the scenes, providing essential support by organizing funding, creating spaces for Neo Khalsa ideals to be propagated and facilitated, and managing logistics.

MATERIAL ASSETS PROJECT

Material assets encompass the replenishment of funds and the accumulation of wealth through globally recognized asset classes such as gold, corporations, and art. To enact meaningful change the Khalsa way, relying on donations alone is insufficient; strategy must extend deeper. This involves engaging with major banks, mining corporations, lobbying efforts, and operating at the highest levels of influence, navigating the global playing field with insight and precision.

RESOURCES

Financial possibilities and costs.

01 Identifying human assets who can be cultivated and supported is key to advancing a paradigm for a new way of thinking. These individuals are nurtured to develop their skills, knowledge, and influence, enabling them to challenge conventional perspectives and carry forward initiatives that reshape understanding on both a community and global scale.

02 Accumulating funds and identifying talent capable of generating additional resources, while also understanding how to strategically deploy them for maximum impact.

03 Wielding funds deliberately and strategically to maximize impact, create sustainable, meaningful change, and advance the long-term vision of the Khalsa.

ASSET TYPE

Grouped into two categories, we have human assets and material assets.

HUMAN ASSETS

Through rigorous cross-discipline collaboration, we deliver designs that balance aesthetics, function, cost, and quality.

HISTORIC PRESERVATION

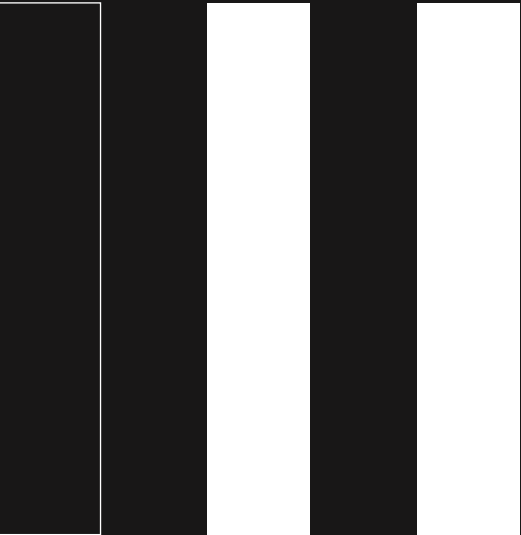

HUMAN ASSETS | 03

HUMAN ASSET CULTIVATION

Cultivating human assets will begin with establishing Neo Khalsa as a beacon to attract talent capable of making a real difference. This involves identifying the people needed and the roles to be filled. While many operational positions must be staffed to ensure smooth progress, the most crucial focus will be on thinkers those who can envision, strategize, and articulate ideas to advance the mission effectively.

The Panth spans multiple continents, with thousands of university-educated students and self-taught Panthic leaders awaiting guidance toward a higher purpose to serve the community and drive meaningful change.
